Frank Howell returned home from lodge Thursday night to find that some cold blooded thieves had appropriated his feather bed, sheets, comfort and two Angora rugs. The prospect was anything but pleasing to Frank, who was left with nothing but a Tueson blanket for covering on one of the most in clement nights of the winter, and his expres slops and opinions of the curs who had served him such a scurvy trick, were warm, if his corporeal body was not. It was disclosed that the thieves had also entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Blevins and stolen Navajo blanket and rug. The boldness of the theft is surprising, and, although diligent effort has been made to discover the robbers, no clue has been found. It is the general opinion that the robbery was committed by persons familiar with the premises and neighborhood. On Saturday night Louis Sultan's stable was entered and four bales of hay, two horse collars and a pair of wagon shafts stolen. This is the second time Mr. Sultan has been robbed and both times, he thinks, by the same parties, although he has no positire proof as to their identity,

"It is with pleasure I tell you that one day's use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I was relieved of a very severe cold. My head was completely stopped up and I could not sleep at night. I can recommend this remedy." A cold nearly always starts in the head and afterwards extends to the throat and lungs. That done, the authority coased to exist except by act of the legislature.
